Church Workers Get No Encouragement.

A gentleman spent several weeks in "our town," where he was an entire stranger, says a writer in The Delinquent. During this time he attended "our church" every Sunday.

A day or so before leaving, he had occasion to enter a shoe store, and recognized in the man who came forward to wait upon him the usher who had seated him the previous Sundays.

After making his purchase, he spoke of the pleasant little church, said he was about to leave the town, and thanked the usher for his kind services to him every Sunday he had been there. The latter was greatly pleased and touched by the stranger's appreciation, and said that he had unlearned in "our church" for eighteen years, but could not remember that anyone had ever before spoken a word of thanks to him.

It is partly this thoughtless neglect of expressing our gratitude which makes church work so discouraging. These suggestions, if carried out, will not fill "the church in our town" or other churches in other towns immediately, but they might strengthen a few weak portions of our armor and send us forth better equipped for the conquest of the world for Christ.

Equality, Not Separation.

Separation from the Empire is the policy which The Mail and Empire discovers in the speeches of Mr. E. E. Bennett and Sir Wilfrid Laurier at Ottawa, and of Mr. Graham, the minister of railways at Montreal. When we read the speeches we find that what is advocated is not separation, but self-government. Mr. Bennett says that Canada is no longer a colony of any nation. The Canadian Empire is a colony in the commonly accepted sense was recognized by the British government when it used the term "Dominion overseas." Sir John Macdonald looked forward to the time when Canada would become an ally rather than a dependency of Great Britain.

Whatever public men may say, it is useless to ignore the facts. Every day since responsible government was granted Canada has been growing out of a position of dependency into one of equality. From first to last the campaign for a Canadian navy, or for Canadian contributions to the British navy, has been based on the contention that Canada has grown so strong and so wealthy that it is a shame for her to depend on the people of the British Islands for defense.—Toronto Star.

Beware Pneumonia!

According to mortality statistics, pneumonia is one of the most frequent and fatal diseases to which humanity is subject. Its action is so rapid that its victim is often in a precarious condition before realizing that anything more serious is the matter than a severe cold.

This is one of the dangers apt to follow the neglect of a cough or cold, and is therefore the best of reasons why one should check a cold at the start. A simple, inexpensive and effective remedy for coughs and colds is made by mixing two ounces of Glycerine, a half-ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure and eight ounces of pure Whisky. These can be bought in any good drug store and mixed together in a large bottle. Take a teaspoonful four times a day. It is claimed by the Leach Chemical Co., of Cincinnati, that this mixture will break up a cold in twenty-four hours and cure any cough that is curable.

ST. LOUIS DOCTOR CORRALLED

Not Allowed to Leave the City Pending Inquest Into the Death of William J. Erder.

St. Louis, Dec. 6.—Dr. Loren B. Doxey, husband of Dora E. Doxey, will not be allowed to leave St. Louis pending the inquest tomorrow into the death of William J. Erder, whom Mrs. Doxey (formerly Mrs. Erder) is accused of having killed with arsenic.

White Arsenic Found.
The report of Dr. W. H. Warren, who analyzed Erder's viscera, states that in eleven analyses of portions of Erder's body he found .3162 grains of white arsenic. Dr. Warren said in a previous report that the embalming fluid used by Erder's undertaker contained no trace of arsenic. Miss Kate Erder, sister of the dead man, furnished the prosecuting attorney today with a letter from a firm of attorneys in Columbus, Neb., in which it was said that a bank there received shortly after Erder's death in July a draft for $2,700 drawn by Mrs. Dora E. Erder. This corresponds with the amount of insurance collected on Erder's life policies.

Dr. Doxey Held as Witness.
Dr. Doxey made a long statement today in defense of his wife. He declared that she was never married to Erder. In May of 1909 she was in a hospital in St. Louis, he said. Many operations and illnesses to which she was subject and drugs given her at those times are responsible, he declared, for the fact that she is neurotic.

Dr. Doxey was subpoenaed as a witness at tomorrow's proceedings.

RAILWAY EXTENSION.

Preliminary Steps Toward Poughkeepsie Bridge Connection.

It is understood that preliminary steps have been taken for the extension of the New York and Westchester line of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company northward through Westchester county, New York, to connect with the Poughkeepsie bridge system of the New Haven company.

The company has of late been improving rapidly the Poughkeepsie bridge system, including the double tracking of the line from Poughkeepsie bridge to New Haven. With the completion of the New York and Westchester line and its extensions, the New Haven will give both the Poughkeepsie bridge system and the Ontario & Western a new entrance into New York in addition to the terminal opposite New York, which the Ontario & Western now has by trackage rights over the West Shore road.

In the fulfillment of the New Haven's plans it will have a system of several hundred miles of road, part of it of almost a western trunk line character and entering New York city.

JOHN FITCH MEMORIAL.

Admiral Bunce Section to Take Up Matter on Monday.

Admiral Bunce section, No. 42, Navy League of the United States, of Hartford, will hold its adjourned annual meeting Monday evening in the new armory. A report is to be presented by a committee appointed to make preliminary investigations in the matter of a proposed memorial to John Fitch, a native of this state, who was the first successfully to apply steam to the propulsion of vessels. In view of the belief that his work has never received proper recognition, it has been felt that it should be recognized by a memorial and that it would be fitting for Admiral Bunce section to take the initiative in the matter.

Father Tabb.

While the world is poorer because John Bannister Tabb is dead, it is richer because he lived. As a priest he was not widely known; as a poet he was known wherever the English language is read and pure, sweet sentiment is appreciated. Father Tabb was not a great poet. He wrote no monumental work. No ponderous volume carries his name. But upon the tablets of tens of thousands of hearts are indelibly engraved the words of grace and wisdom and simplicity that came from his pen. His four-line tribute to Father Damien, the priest who gave his life in service with the lepers at Molokai, is one of the most expressive things of its kind ever written. It runs:

Unblushing, to thy feet we bring,
Oh, God, an offering
As pure as earth can know—
A leper, white as snow.

Father Tabb had wit and humor in abundance, and the stories about him or by him that are told in the Catholic colleges of Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia are innumerable.

Father Tabb was not only a poet, but a student and lover of nature. He was an idealist with the genius of contemplating his ideals into the smallest possible space.—Savannah News.

RUNAWAY MARRIAGES.

This State No Longer a Gretna Green for Couples.

Rhode Island has tired of being the good friend of eloping couples from other states who want to be married with as little delay as possible. Therefore a law was passed by the last legislature to end the lure of the little state for the engaged. After December 1 a marriage license issued in Rhode Island does not become legally effective for five days. Nearly a thousand couples from other places were married in the state during the past fiscal year. The youth of Massachusetts will chiefly suffer or benefit from this act, whichever point of view is taken.—Brooklyn Standard-Union.

Not Far to Run.

Rhode Island proposes to make runaway marriages impossible within its lines. All right as far as it goes, but runaway couples won't have far and the law.—Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

Rhode Island and Newport.
Rhode Island in general and Providence in particular repudiates and renounces by law the well earned title, "Gretna Green." Rhode Island in general and Newport in particular might still further public applause by putting some sort of ban on the fashionable divorce and monkey-dinner colony.—Manchester Union.

The Power Within Us.

Speedy marriages are to be barred in Rhode Island. Maybe it will be necessary to get Aldrich's consent hereafter.—Louisville Post.

Other Gretna Greens.
Quick marriages have been tabooed in Rhode Island, but it is never any trouble to step into another state from any part of Rhode Island.—Waterbury Republican.

One of Our Occupations.
At first blush, it seems as if, when she ceases to be a Gretna Green, there really be a raison d'être for "Little Rhody." However, it is needful that Aldrich continue, as emperor of the United States senate; and probably no other state except Rhode Island (not even Nevada) would stand for Aldrich.—Albany Argus.

Five Days' Delay.

Rhode Island's new laws regarding marriage went into effect Wednesday and hereafter the state will cease to be so popular a Gretna Green. Under the new law marriage licenses do not become effective until five days after they are issued.—Bangor Commercial.

Premier Asquith's Plan.

It will be well to keep in mind the suggestion which Mr. Asquith himself made in his powerful speech of yesterday, when he urged that the common use the same means against that he called the usurpation of the lords in the time of the crown. The domination of the crown was ended, but the crown itself remains to this day in the enjoyment of very important and substantial functions.—New York Tribune.

White Slaves and Congress.

The traffic in ignorant, unfortunate and betrayed girls, or white slaves, is of such proportions and power, largely because of the backing of corrupt politicians, that international, national and state measures combined will not easily destroy it. International measures depend for their effectiveness chiefly on the laws of emigration and immigration, while state measures are too often nullified by local police conspiracies. Our federal legislation promised very substantial results, but the supreme court has killed a vital part of it. Little can be accomplished if the federal government is limited to duty at the gates of the country, for there are a hundred ways of circumventing the laws governing the admission and exclusion of aliens.

The situation is such that legislative and administrative aid should be welcomed from every honest source. Representative Mann's suggestions for the suppression or diminution of the white slave traffic through the instrumentality of the interstate commerce clause in the constitution are worthy of serious and favorable consideration. Good lawyers in and out of congress will ponder the validity of his proposals; to lay enemies of immorality, greed and brutal tyranny over helpless women the important question is the probable effectiveness of the proposed measure if it be held sound.

And this question will generally be answered in the affirmative. Mr. Mann would make it a crime knowingly to transport or aid in transporting white slaves in interstate and foreign commerce. He would provide for the filing of reports by keepers of aliens in disorderly houses, giving the number of such inmates, their age, nationality, etc. He would prohibit severely any violation of these requirements.

The able discussions of the scope of the commerce clause which we have heard in the last decade, in connection with lotteries, trusts, insurance, child labor, have thrown much light on the things that congress can or cannot do under the power to regulate interstate commerce. This light should enable the proper committees of congress and the department of justice to pronounce speedily upon the legal phases of the Mann suggestions.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Wellman the Expert.

So Walter Wellman, near-Arctic explorer, thinks Dr. Cook is a fraud. Maybe, but at any rate Cook got a blamed sight farther north than Wellman ever did in all his fifteen years of unsuccessful attempts to reach the pole. Mr. Wellman, who in 1892 marked with a monument the spot in the West Indies where he decided Columbus first landed, started in 1894 on his quest of the pole. A periodical at that time said his "expedition seems to be about as crazy a one as ever started." Mr. Wellman has "started" several since then.—Meriden Journal.

A Warning to John Bull.

Nevertheless, John Bull must not forget that Lawyer Delphin M. Delmas, who praises the British bench and bar, is the discoverer, if not the inventor, of dementia Americana.—Manchester Union.

The German army is using paper kettles which are said to be of Japanese invention.

Congress and the Sugar Trust.

In answer to the question, "Will congress investigate the sugar trust?" Representative Payne is quoted in a Tribune dispatch this morning as saying:

"I don't think it will. The matter is being pretty thoroughly investigated now. An investigation by congress will depend on whether the federal district attorney cannot do it more effectively than congress."

But this is not at all the question. If a congressional investigation at this time would involve any risk of interfering with the effectiveness of the criminal prosecutions, it should by all means be put off to a later day; but the prosecutions, while the most urgent thing now in hand, cannot possibly cover all the ground of this portentous scandal, and cannot in some respects probe as deep. We all hope that Mr. Stimson may succeed in getting one or more of the real criminals—the big men in the trust—behind the bars, but it is only too certain that a great part of the rascality will prove to be beyond the reach of legal punishment. The country has a right to know the full truth of the case, and fix the guilt of those responsible for this great body of corruption, both in business and in politics. Congress only can bring out the truth. Senator Culberson and Senator Doxey, who stated in the World's Washington dispatches this morning, have declared most emphatically for a congressional investigation, and there is every reason to expect that it will be urged upon the senate. The only proper qualification of the demand is that expressed by Senator Borah, that it should be made subject to the necessities of effective prosecution of the criminal cases.—New York Evening Post.

An Irrepressible Conflict.

The purpose of Mr. Mann of Illinois to introduce at the opening session of congress bills to amend the Payne act as to avert a tariff war with Canada gives further evidence—if such were needed—of the folly of any attempt to suppress continued discussion of that act. Neither the president nor the speaker of the house, though they insist that it is the best of all possible evasions, can convert widespread public dissatisfaction into pleased acceptance. Mr. Mann's bills are aimed at the outrageous paper and wood pulp schedules. That he will succeed in getting them passed is perhaps doubtful; but their introduction will at least serve to give the "insurgents" another opportunity to carry on their fight. If the democrats in the house are wise they will promptly join hands with Mr. Mann, and help to set their party right on the one question with which it can hope to win next fall. Probably the speaker's little bargain with certain democratic members covered this point.—Providence Journal.

An Old Type.

The death of Judge Arthur F. Eggleston removes another of the older type of prosecuting attorney in Connecticut, the sort of prosecutor who conceived it to be his duty to bring out the truth and prove the defendant guilty or innocent, as the case might be, not necessarily to show him guilty though he had to pull down the heavens in doing so. Let us hope that his memory may serve to raise up imitators of that kind of prosecutor.—New Haven Register.

The most these drugs can do is to drive the blood poisons back into the system and smother it for several years. TREE WARDEN FOR BRIDGEPORT

Common Council Will Probably Bring Dead Political Plum Back to Life Again.

In order to comply with the conditions imposed by an act passed by the last general assembly the office of tree warden will probably be created again by the Bridgeport common council. Bridgeport has been without a tree warden since the death of Carl Holm, who held office for a number of years. Since that time all dead and dangerous trees have been removed by the director of public works.

The law provides that no tree along the highway can be cut down by any public service corporation or by the owner of the adjacent property or by any person excepting the tree warden.

Saving Fish After Floods.

"When brooks, streams and ponds become dry most fishes die," said Francis E. Brennan of Philadelphia. "Some kinds, however, like eels and catfish, are able to survive for considerable time by burrowing into the wet or moist bottom, which may be quite dry at the surface. This is particularly true of some tropical fishes found in regions subject to drought, where it is a matter of common observation that a pond depression that has been baked by the sun's rays for days or weeks will immediately after a heavy rainfall afford good fishing. The ability of certain tropical fishes to endure drought and to remain out of the water for a long time in the markets depends on the possession of an accessory gill on the under side of each gill cover, by means of which oxygen may be taken directly from the atmosphere. Failure to notice dead fish after the drying out of brooks or ponds simply means that birds and four-footed beasts, often night prowlers, have been there first. One of the most important lines of work carried on by the fisheries branch of the government is the rescue of food and game fishes from the overflowed lands in the Mississippi Valley. After the floods subside shallow pools are left that are wholly disconnected from the streams, and in these the fishes gradually perish as the drying of the pools progresses. By sending men to seine these pools the government each year saves and returns to public waters hundreds of thousands of valuable fishes."—Washington Herald.
